Oakfields Weekly

Oakfields Montessori School, Issue 1: Friday 23rd September 2017

Welcome to the second issue of Oakfields Weekly 2017-18! We hope you found last weeks issue helpful.

This week some of our children had the opportunity learn outside of the Oakfield's grounds. Our Year 2 class had a lovely day at the beach, and learnt all about the seaside linking in the National Curriculum Geography fieldwork skills. Year 3 travelled back in time all the way to the Ice Age and learnt about how artefacts give us information about the past. Both classes had a fantastic learning day!

Both myself and Miss Brewster have spent some quality time in lessons this week.— which has been really lovely. We were so impressed with their amazing attitude towards their learning. All children, in every class were engaged and demonstrated excellent learning behaviour.

I announced this week that we will be holding an Anti-Bullying week starting on Monday 16th October. Our Anti-Bullying ambassadors, Prefects and whole school community are keen to work together to ensure that Oakfields is a place where kind words and actions are expected from all. I thank you for continuing to support us with this aim.

Hearty Heads

Interestingly, this week all of the school has shown great passion towards the academic curriculum. Also, we have had Jeans for Genes Day on Monday, which we raised a breathtaking, whopper, £218! We may be a microscopic school but we have telescopic power.
